Descriptive Title Book of Hours Text title Book of Hours

Abstract This richly illuminated Book of Hours was produced ca.

1460 in Bruges by an artist in the circle of Willem Vrelant, whose work was influenced by the Masters of the Gold Scrolls and Master of the Beady Eyes. Allusions to the order of Franciscans and Augustinians in the litany and calendar, and the prominent depiction of female saints in the All Saints miniature (fol. 293r) indicate that the book was originally created for a female patron, possibly connected to one of these orders. Much of the existing scholarship on the book's twenty-two full-page miniatures has focused on the depictions of angelic musicians, such as those found on fol. 278v. Also of interest is the presence of multiple pilgrimage badge impressions on the final folio (fol. 295v).

Binding

The binding is not original.

Seventeenth-century Belgian binding in brown calf skin on wooden boards, with repaired and re-backed mitered corners; four straps at four sets of deep cuts provide the structure for sewing; upper and lower board marked with gilt oval stamp on inlay of calfskin (possibly concealing previous stamp?); inscription "IHS" surmounted by Crucifixion within both ovals; naturally rounded spine with gilt tooled crosses; endbands in pink and blue-green thread; fastened with cast silver clasp, chiseled in the shape of a love knot at the center fore-edge; hinged on lower board; hinge and clasp attached with nails to boards by shield-shaped plates

Provenance

Produced ca. 1460 in Bruges by a follower of Willem Vrelant, with illuminations influenced by Master of the Beady Eyes and the Masters of the Golden Scrolls; abundance of female saints in All Saints miniature suggests original ownership by woman with possible connection to Franciscan or Augustinian orders (see litany and calendar)

Rebound in seventeenth century; heart motif suggests Augustinian affiliation
