Descriptive Title Book of Hours
Text title Book of Hours

Abstract This Book of Hours illuminated ca. 1470 contains stunning examples of full-page miniatures in the style of Willem Vrelant, most likely originating in Bruges. Given that several prayer cycles contain indications of a female suppliant, as well as a majority female saints in the litany, the book was either owned or co-owned by a woman. The artist or artists have chosen to alternate between color and near-grisaille miniatures throughout the text and the calendar, making for a strikingly varied program of images.

Binding

The binding is original.

Produced in Belgium by Johannes de Lende who was active between 1459 and 1493 CE; brown leather with oak boards, design divided into four panels with inscription running around the outside of each, they read "ob laudem xristi librum hunc recte ligaui Iohannes de lende"; similar design on lower board except the inscription there reads "ora pro nobis sancta dei genitrix ut digni efficiamur promis sione xristi"

Provenance

Completed in Bruges, likely for a woman, ca. 1470

Likely owned by Queen Eleanor of Portugal (1458-1525), based on Portuguese ownership inscription on front pastedown: "Este libro foi da rainha/dona lianor nao se po/ de dar de fora so pe/na de escommunhao"

Ownership by a cleric from Santiago suggested by an inscription added on front pastedown by 1600: "Fr. Luis de S[an]tiago"

Léon Gruel, Paris, late nineteenth or early twentieth century; modern pencil inscriptions on front pastedown read "Add. Ms. 12" and "N 815"; same numbers occur on Gruel's handwritten sales slip

Henry Walters, Baltimore, purchased from Gruel between 1895 and 1931
