Abstract Written in northeastern France in the last quarter of the twelfth century, this manuscript contains works by Solinus, Orosius, Pseudo-Alexander, Justinus, and Walter of Chatillon. An excerpt of the "Alexandreis" by Walter of Chatillon (active 1170-1180) provides a close dating for the manuscript. The manuscript represents an interest in classical texts, particularly that of geography and the Alexander legend, during this period, and the continued interest in ensuing centuries. For example, it exhibits heavy use through the rubricated titles in the margins, text corrections, and annotations that date from the twelfth through the sixteenth century. It was possibly owned by Francesco Griffolini Francesco, a humanist who translated classical works in Naples in the fifteenth century, as indicated by his signature (fol. 1r).

Bound in Naples, Italy, second half of the fifteenth century; calfskin over beveled boards; medieval slit straps; central blind tooled panels with repeated striped banded knots encompassing a cross; gilt title on spine: "SOLINUS / MS. MEM. / SEC. XI."; evidence for two straps and clasps previously attached to the lower and upper fore-edge of the covers

Provenance

Created in northeastern France, ca. 1175; early ownership provenance erased on fols. 2r and 59v

Possibly owned by Francesco Griffolini Francesco (also known as Francesco Aretini, or Francesco of Arezzo), a notable humanist and translator of classical texts, Naples, ca. 1440-1500; evidence for ownership from inscription on fol. 1r: "FRANCISCI. ARRETINI. ET. AMICORUM"; further evidence seen in the binding, which features tooled designs present in Naples ca. 1450

Inscription in ca. fifteenth-sixteenth century humanist script indicates possible change in ownership, fol. 2r: "NUNC VERO GEORGII & AMICORUM SUORUM"

Probable Spanish ownership, ca. 1500; evidence from medical recipes in Spanish on fols. 1 and 60 and Spanish marginal notations throughout text (mostly erased)

Possibly acquired by Abbot Luigi Celotti (1786-1846); evidence for ownership examined in A.N.L Munby, "Phillipps studies," 1951-60, vol. 3, pp. 50-51, 151

Owned by Rev. Henry Drury, ca. 1823, Harrow; provenance indicated by inscription on fol. ir: "H. Drury. 1823"

Thomas Thorpe, London bookseller (1791-1851), London, purchased book on February 21, 1827 from Henry Drury, no. 4022

Sir Thomas Phillipps, ca. late nineteenth-early twentieth century, purchased book, added inscription: "Phillipps MS/3403" on fol. 1v

Bernard Quaritch Ltd., London bookseller, purchased from Phillipps' sale, London, Sotheby's, June 15-18, 1908 (no. 678)

Henry Walters, Baltimore, ca. 1908-1931, probably purchased book from Quaritch
